

To Whom It May Concern:

In response to a very pertinent issue in not only my life, but thousands of others around the world is the issue of the Low Power FM stations attempting to take priority over current FM K-LOVE radio stations.

Now, I don't know how many of you reading this actually listen to K-LOVE, nor how many are Christians following Christ, as K-LOVE is a Christian radio station, but for those of us that this applies to in different communities, the thought of a Christian radio station possibly not being able to air as often as it is, or at all, is very saddening.

I have been very blessed by this station not only from the music, but from the over three million dollars of air time that has been devoted to other ministries other than the K-LOVE ministry (I have done my research). Focus on the Family is in large part, one of the very valuable, or shall I say, invaluable assets that K-LOVE has to offer.

This station serves me not only as a Christian, but also in helping others find Christ. When I can't think of the words to say, K-LOVE is right there and it's always playing in my car if not in my room.

As a college student, I am very well-aware how big of a priority music is to late-adolescents and early twenty-somethings. Music is where students find relief from the pressures and stress of this society as they prepare for their future. K-LOVE provides the kind of support students need while they are still actively searching out who they are. I would be devastated to find K-LOVE not on the radio as a result of the LPFM because of this very reason.

Now why do I believe the K-LOVE station is in the public interest? Well, first of all, it is listener supported. No other station I know besides the Christian stations are supported by their fans—entirely by their fans. I currently support K-LOVE financially and hope to throughout my life because of the effect it has had on me. Another reason is the guidance and Biblical truths that are presented. When nothing else seems clear, God is still there and the K-LOVE ministry is publicly addressing this for the people seeking meaning for their lives.

This is only a beginning of my thoughts, I truly hope that you will take them into consideration, even if you don't listen to K-LOVE—there are thousands other (throughout the entire world) who do and depriving them of opportunities like this from K-LOVE would be quite a shame. Thank you for your time and I look forward to hearing back from you!
